

LongRest™ Mobile Seat

Experience our seating comfort and feel the difference!

Introducing the LongRest Mobile Seat

In 1998, we designed our highly successful LongRest 2000 air cushion system to make longhaul airline seating safer and more comfortable. Today, we can claim Virgin Atlantic and Singapore Airlines amongst our airline customers. You-the consumer can now benefit from our latest innovation-the LongRest Mobile Seat. You can take this unique product with you anywhere to make even the hardest of surfaces comfortable.

How it works

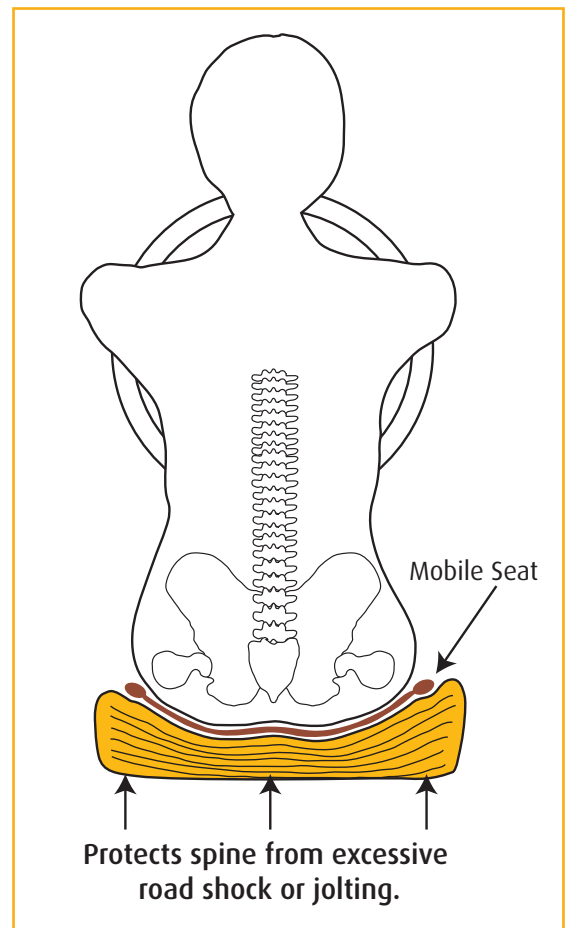

Simple in principle and operation. If you can distribute your bodyweight more efficiently across the seat surface you intend sitting on you will not develop pressure points (hot spots) under your butt and you will be more comfortable. Not easy to do but we can now help you achieve that objective with our latest invention.

Car seats - Health and Comfort issues

When we designed this comfort solution, car seats were the main target. Comfortable to sit on when you bought initially but the reality was different at the end of your first journey when you got out and stood up. You had been experiencing a level of discomfort that was totally unacceptable in relation to the price you paid for your new car. This situation is still with us today. The latest statistics from UK health authorities claim we are spending more time sitting in our cars than ever before. For instance, driving in city rush hour traffic or doing a long journey takes its toll on our circulation especially in the soft tissues of the buttocks and thighs. Stress to our mind and body is the outcome. The comfort experience of our LongRest Mobile Seat will help you to cope better with the discomfort.

There are many seating applications for the Mobile Seat in everyday life. At home, work or play the need for seating comfort is ever present. Using the Mobile Seat as an interface on home chairs, office chairs or even on the floor for Yoga can make a huge difference to comfort and concentration on the task.

There are also many applications out of doors where you certainly wont find a comfortable seat and the Mobile Seat is also waterproof.

- Our Senior citizens have great need for comfort to cope with the golden years that involve a lot less mobility in daily life.
- A Great Gift.
- This is an excellent gift item as it can be of value to all members of the family.
